Case Study Workshops use the Harvard Business School Method to evaluate a real claim and address Risk Management issues. Attendees will break up into small teams to discuss the case following the initial reviewing of the story. Once these small team discussions are complete, findings will be reported to the entire group. This case will focus on project team capability issues, failure to get subs involved early, reading the contract and to check insurance, documentation problems, billing and payment issues, communication breakdowns, and failing to respond properly to problems.
